About "Project Ekta"

Introduction

In response to the recent floods in Rasuwa, Nepal, the Interact Club of British Model College (ICBMC), in collaboration with the Rotaract Club of Kopundol, organized Project Ekta, a community-based donation drive focused on providing immediate support to disaster-affected communities. The project was initiated with the aim of bringing people together and encouraging collective action during a time when many families were facing difficulties due to the effects of the disaster.

The name "Ekta," meaning unity, reflects the main spirit of the project: working together to support those in need. The initiative provided an opportunity for students and members of the wider community to contribute through donations and participate in a meaningful humanitarian effort. Students, teachers, staff members, Rotaractors, and members of the public who learned about the campaign through social media actively participated by visiting the college and donating available resources.

Throughout the campaign, contributors provided a variety of essential items, including food, clothing, medicines, hygiene products, and other useful relief materials. These donations were collected, organized, and prepared for distribution to ensure that the resources could reach communities where they were needed. Although the initial focus was on flood-affected communities in Rasuwa, the project eventually extended its support to Nuwakot, Dhading, and other affected areas through collaboration with different organizations.

Project Summary

The donation drive was conducted from 31 August to 17 September 2026 at British Model College. Collection points were established within the college premises, making it convenient for members of the college community and external supporters to contribute throughout the campaign. The participation of students, faculty members, staff, Rotaractors, and well-wishers helped create a strong sense of collective responsibility and community involvement.

To ensure that the collected materials were properly managed, a daily donation tracker was maintained throughout the campaign. The tracker recorded the items received, dispatched, and remaining in each category. This helped the organizing team monitor the available supplies, maintain accurate records, and coordinate the distribution of materials in a transparent and systematic manner.

As the collection progressed, the relief materials were sorted and distributed through different organizations and community networks to reach multiple disaster-affected areas. This allowed the project to extend its support beyond a single location and ensured that the collected resources could assist communities facing different levels of need.

1. First Shipment: Relief materials were sent to Syabrubesi, Rasuwa, through the Free Student Union of Oscal College, providing essential support to communities affected by the floods.
2. Second Shipment: Essential food supplies were donated to Swayambhu Learning Centre, comprising 1 carton of Wai Wai noodles, 2 packets of chiura, 2 cartons of biscuits, and 7 dozen packets of biscuits.
3. Third Shipment: Additional relief materials were sent to Nuwakot through the Rotaract Club of Kathmandu Kalanki, extending the project's support to another disaster-affected community.
4. Fourth Shipment: Relief materials were dispatched to affected areas of Rasuwa and Dhading through the Royal Beach Camp Organization, further expanding the reach of the initiative and supporting communities in multiple locations.
