About "Food, Stationery and Book Distribution Program"

Introduction:

The Interact Club of Arniko College (ICAC) participated in a community service initiative organized by the Rotary Club of Biratnagar on 22nd September 2026 at Purbanchal Bal Sewa Ashram, Biratnagar. The program focused on providing essential food items, stationery supplies, and books to the children residing at the Ashram. The initiative aimed to contribute towards their daily needs and educational development while creating a supportive and encouraging environment for the children.

Through its collaboration with the Rotary Club of Biratnagar, ICAC had the opportunity to take part in a meaningful service activity that combined immediate material support with educational assistance. The project reflected the shared commitment of the Rotary family towards community welfare, education, and the holistic development of children.

Project Summary:

The program was organised at Purbanchal Bal Sewa Ashram with the objective of extending practical support to the children through the distribution of essential items for their daily lives and studies. As part of the initiative, food items, stationery materials, and books were provided to the children, addressing both their immediate requirements and educational needs.

The distribution of food items served as a gesture of care and support towards the children, while the stationery supplies contributed directly to their regular academic activities. The provision of books further encouraged reading, learning, and personal development by giving the children additional educational resources to study and explore beyond their regular academic materials.

Members of the Interact Club of Arniko College actively participated in the program alongside the Rotary Club of Biratnagar. Their involvement included supporting the distribution process and interacting with the children, creating a warm and welcoming atmosphere throughout the activity. The direct interaction allowed members to better understand the importance of empathy, inclusion, and consistent community engagement.

The initiative demonstrated that meaningful community service can address multiple areas of need simultaneously. By combining nutritional support with educational materials, the program contributed not only to the immediate well-being of the children but also to their learning environment and opportunities for continued academic growth. The availability of books and stationery also encouraged the children to engage more actively with their studies and reading habits.

The project provided ICAC members with a valuable opportunity to practise teamwork, communication, responsibility, empathy, and service in a real community setting. Working alongside the Rotary Club of Biratnagar strengthened fellowship while allowing young Interactors to contribute directly to an initiative supporting children and their educational journey.

The successful completion of the program reinforced the importance of sustained community engagement and collective action. It reflected the commitment of ICAC and the Rotary Club of Biratnagar to supporting children through initiatives that promote both well-being and education.

Overall, the Food, Stationery and Book Distribution Program was a meaningful community service initiative that combined care, educational support, and fellowship. By contributing essential food items and study resources, the participating members were able to create a positive and encouraging experience for the children while reinforcing the values of service, compassion, education, and community responsibility.
